(This is a planning worksheet for you. When you have finalized your choices, you can leave a written funeral plan for others to follow).
 Do you have strong feelings about whether you'd like to be buried or cremated? If you are unsure, consider the pro and cons of each option – logistics, price, proximity to family and friends, etc.
2. Would you like a small private service or a larger service? Why is either important to you?
3. What are some of your favorite poems or readings?
4. What are some of your favorite hymns or songs?
5. What flowers would you like to have at your service, if you are having one?
6. Are there special people you would like to speak at your service?

7.	Where would you like to have your service? Is there anyone at that location you need to speak with to preplan?
8.	Do you have a favorite restaurant where you'd like to have a repast or reception?
9.	What are some of your favorite foods that you'd like served? A favorite beverage?
10	If you are choosing cremation, is there a location you'd like some of your ashes to be scattered?
11.	If you are choosing burial or interment, where would you like to be your final resting place? Have you explored the associated costs?
Ta	ke some time to think about these points before you make a final decision and put it in writing.
